LABOR LAWS VIOLATED.

Suits to be Brought Against Chicago Carpenters After Investigation.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., June 7.—Special Treasury Agent A. J. Lester has returned from Chicago, where he has been collecting evidence of violations of the alien contract labor law among Chicago carpenters. The evidence has been forwarded to Secretary Windom, who, it is expected, will order the district attorney to commence suit by Thursday next. The number of suits and names of persons against whom they are to be brought have not been made public. The law provides that separate suits may be brought for each alien employed, and the penalty on conviction is $1000 in each case. Next week government agents will proceed to investigate violations of alien law at Fort Sheridan. It is reported carpenters are at work there who have been brought from Scotland and are working for less wages than are paid to American wage earners.

La Salle's First Trip Down the Mississippi River.

Pere La Salle early in the eighteenth century accomplished a feat which in those days appeared almost miraculous. During his long descent of the Mississippi river, some of his attendants, in their odd moments, paid special attention to botany, and even in those early times discovered the wonderful healing properties existing in the shrubs, roots, and herbs of Louisiana. So that early people we may make bold to trace back what subsequently became Crook Female Tonic, the result of the arduous labors of these early explorers. It is a fact that the information which enabled her to concoct her purgative, the co-operation of those good men.

Crook Female Tonic. This remedy was discovered by the Jesuit fathers while detained in captivity among the ancient Chinook Indians. An interesting romance is suggested thereby. Suffice to say that the tonic was produced in full efficacy, as is freely attested by the thousands of afflicted women, who have been benefited by its use. It is a fact that wherever tried it has been found a boon to suffering women.

The measure will be introduced on Monday next.

A STATE LOSS.

Expressions of Sympathy for the Loss of the Palace Still Pouring In.

No fire has ever occurred in the history of Texas that touched the entire state so closely and aroused such universal expression of sympathy for the loss it occasioned as that in which the Spring Palace sank to ruins. Most of these expressions are accompanied by a hope that another will be reared fairer than the first.

CORPUS CHRISTI, TEX., June 4, 1890. Capt. B. B. Paddock, Fort Worth, Tex.: My DEAR CAPTAIN—I have just returned from a trip to the island and am shocked beyond measure to learn of the destruction of the Spring Palace. This is a loss which will be felt throughout the whole state. In my opinion no enterprise has ever been inaugurated in Texas which has been so influential in advancing the varied resources of the state as the Spring Palace. From its inception I had a peculiar strong feeling of interest in the enterprise, but I had no idea of the strength of my sentimental affection until I learned of its destruction. I can enter fully into your feelings in this matter, and while it is a case like this which is inadequate to express our feelings, I desire to tender my heartfelt sympathies. I am a very true friend.

EDWARD B. FURMAN. GAINESVILLE, TEX., June 4, 1890. B. B. Paddock, Esq., President, Fort Worth, Tex.: DEAR SIR—The destruction of that beautiful temple of art on last Friday evening has caused me a heartfelt expression of sympathy for you in this city, and we feel that what Fort Worth has lost in the burning of the Spring Palace Gainesville has lost in a measure. It is an unquestionable fact that the management of the Palace association has done more to attract persons from a distance—the plan of advertising being so unique—than any other half dozen combined enterprises known in the state; and not alone the fact of the incomparable beauty and grandeur of the building, but the fact that the Palace was a place where they can be seen from the remotest quarter, thus not only making your the central city to all outsiders, but the state of Texas as well, thereby bringing the cynosure of Eastern and Northern eyes, which will conduce to our welfare. We lament the loss of the Spring Palace, it is greatly to be hoped that another just as grand and beautiful will be erected by the next spring season. Very truly, HENRY G. DAVIS.

The Alamo fire insurance company of Texas, through its agents Littlejohn & Martin, paid their loss occasioned by the burning of the Spring Palace yesterday.

This is quick work. The fire occurred on the night of May 30. The loss was estimated out, and the full amount paid June 7. Much obliged to the Alamo.
